

Message from "Go Global" Assistant, Miles / Kalamazoo College

Hello! My name is Miles McDowall. I'm from Kalamazoo College. It's a little university in the middle of the United States, so Doshisha University has been a big change. That said, I have had an amazing time here, and I would love to share it with all of you!

As the saying goes, language is a window into the world; speaking another language lets you see an entire new side of life. I think the best way I could give back to the Doshisha community is to give everyone an opportunity to look through that window, and conversation can be great practice for study abroad preparation or language tests aside.

So if you would ever like to work on your English, please come by the Global Village and have a chat! It's alright if you haven't had much practice--I'm here to help.
